

Peace and Harmony

War and it's Impact

No matter why a country goes to war, whether to protect itself or its neighbours from a tyrant, or to liberate people or as an act of aggression upon a nation for powerful control, the effects of war on the world are catastrophic.

In war you may lose your own life. Members of your family might be killed, members of your community may die, friends may perish, society may collapse, governments may be overthrown. Suicide bombers are encouraged and even children are recruited to fight the enemy. There will be poverty, homelessness, fear, mistrust and emotional and physical distress.

The environment too, suffers. Whole cities, towns and villages are raised to the ground, forests are destroyed. Air, water and soil are also polluted.

Human beings have yet to find a peaceful way to resolve political aggression, religious differences and conflicts.

European Peace Monument, dedicated to John Lennon

TEAR HERE AND KEEP OR GIVE TO A FRIEND TEAR HERE AND KEEP OR GIVE TO A FRIEND

Is global peace possible?

Is war the only solution?

Is mankind capable of taking a non-combative route?

What do you think?...

Peace and Harmony

Though war is devastating, as a result of war, man has learnt many things to help develop our knowledge.

Scientific and technological development advanced rapidly after World War One and World War Two. Code breaking and ballistics kickstarted the development of electronic computer technology.

There were advances in aircraft design and exploration vehicles, leading to outer space travel. Transportation systems were improved and extended across continents. Preventative medicines were developed and perfected and controlled the spread of malaria, Yellow Fever, Smallpox and Typhoid. Field techniques became common practice in hospitals.

When men went into battle, women entered the workforce, paving their way towards equality in the workplace.

Wars can end religious persecution

LIVERPOOL
ONE
Love the City

www.beatlesstory.com

TEAR HERE AND KEEP OR GIVE TO A FRIEND TEAR HERE AND KEEP OR GIVE TO A FRIEND

Remember those who lost their lives in battle

Hope for an end to wars

Believe in a peaceful future

Give peace a chance...